YOUNG MEN AS CRIMINALS.

There is plenty of food for reflection in the fact that five-sevenths of the prisoners in Sing Sing prison are thirty years of age or less. If the numerous surrounding them were such as to reform instead of to harden, there would be a good chance of turning them into useful citizens. The probabilities now are that most of them will pursue criminal careers for the rest of their lives.—New York Tribune.

Such food for reflection can be found in every state penitentiary and prison house in the country. The great majority of criminals are young men. What is true of Sing Sing is true of the Wisconsin state prison. In 1886 there were 231 criminals committed. Of that number 199 were fourteen to thirty years of age. During the year 1885 there were 237 criminals committed and of that number 151 were under thirty years of age.

In 1886 the total population of all the penitentiaries and state prisons in the United States was 64,349. The increase had been something like four or five thousand over the previous year. There is a fact connected with these figures that is sufficiently solemn to make a sober-minded man do a good deal of serious thinking. The average age of the 64,349 convicts was only twenty six years and one month. So here is a problem. What can be done to keep young men out of prison? No one has yet been found who can answer this question. Statistics show that a very large majority of the convicts in penitentiaries are not educated and have no homes where the influence of refinement may be felt. Here, indeed, is the case of a graduate getting into prison. There is not a man in the Wisconsin state prison who ever belonged to any of the leading professions. Convicts do not come from that class. They come from among street loafers, from those who hang around saloons, from those who are churlish and never from Christians' families.

In these facts there can be found plenty of food for reflection. It is a great problem to know how to reform young men when they get into prison, but it is a greater one to know how to keep young men from getting there.

ANOTHER EXHIBITION OF REFORM.

Here is a dispatch from Washington which is worth a careful reading:

WASHINGTON, January 27.—The election committee of the house to-day decided to declare vacant the seat of the twelfth Indiana district occupied by White (republican), who they say is ineligible because of defects in his naturalization papers. The vote in the committee on declaring Lowry (democrat) not elected was unanimous, and that on White's ineligibility was divided on party lines. This will require a new election in the district, which gave a republican majority last election of a little over 2,000 in a total vote of nearly 35,000.

One cannot judge of the infancy of this piece of partisan business unless he understands some of the facts connected with the case. Mr. White was elected over Robert Lowry, a democrat, who served in the previous congress, in the fall of 1886. White received 17,900 and Lowry 15,416, making the republican majority of 2,484. The democrats were galled by the defeat of Lowry, and the latter included to contest the election on the ground that White is a foreigner, and was never naturalized.

He resided in Indiana for many years, was naturalized in that state, served in the war, and there never was a time when his citizenship was questioned until he ran for congress and defeated a democrat. Some time during the war his naturalization papers were lost, and the democrats hearing of this, and being true to the democratic spirit, decided to keep him out of office if possible. Of course Mr. White cannot produce his naturalization papers, but he was supported by the testimony of the judge who naturalized him, but that was not sufficient to drive democratic partisanship from the committee, and therefore every democrat on it voted that Mr. White was not entitled to a seat.

An explanation of this piece of political shenanigan can be found in the fact that "as the house now stands, in case the next presidential election should devolve on the house, the republicans would control a majority of states. If White can be unseated, and a democrat chosen in his place, it will give the democrats a majority in the Indiana delegation, and make the states a politically.

That the democrats of the committee should think it important enough to commit this outrage in order to secure such a result shows that they lack confidence in electing the next president by a vote of the people."

A Washington dispatch says that Congressmen LaFollette was asked on Friday as to the report sent out from Madison that he had designated the state capital as the permanent headquarters of the republican clubs of Wisconsin, said: "Yes, it is true."

It is Mr. LaFollette's plan to at once open correspondence with leading republicans in each county, furnish them with a plan of organization, and then, after the clubs are started, call a convention of the clubs. The convention will not be called until there are 50 to 100 clubs started. Madison is to be congratulated on getting the headquarters for so important a political organization. The location is central, and will more easily accommodate persons having business with the club headquarters than any other city in the state.

Down in St. Louis, local reporters are getting into the commendable habit of calling things by their right name, as the following from the St. Louis Republican will show: "Heretofore Judge Noonan has been misrepresented from service on the bench while drunk, and the business of his court had to be delayed until he sobered up. Fortunately for the public service, his honor has at last by long practice and application, succeeded in getting drunk at night and sobering up in time for work next morning, so that the sessions of the court of criminal correction are held with fair regularity. Last week was a case in point, for although he held court every day, Judge Noonan had a very breezy time of it, complicated with some little scrapping and a great deal of alcohol."

St. Louis, Republican: A suit of woolen clothes that cost the English workman $5 costs the American workman $10; though the wages paid for making it are as low in New York as in England. Senator Fry has a chance to explain how the protective tariff in favor of the foreigners who control the clothing contracts of New York elevates and encourages American labor.

What a liar the St. Louis Republican is! In the first place a suit of clothes for a workman to wear, cannot be bought in England for five dollars. In the second place the same grade of woolen clothes, which the Republicans claim can be bought in England for five dollars, will not cost ten dollars in this country, nor scarcely more than half of it. And in the third place the wages are not as low in New York as they are in England. Anyone who has been to England and has bought a ready-made suit there, can tell the editor of the St. Louis Republican that the suit cost him very near as much as a suit of like grade would cost him in the United States.

A Washington telegram says Senator Spooner's proposition to put telegraph companies under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission is receiving commendation on all sides. It seems to forestall any action Senator Sawyer's committee on postoffices may take. Senator Culom, who was largely instrumental in passing the interstate law, said to-day: "Spooner has hit the nail on the head. There is nothing in telegraphing so radically different from railroads that the two cannot be dealt with by the same controlling power. The only difficulty is that the commission may already be too heavily burdened with work, and a larger commission or separate may be deemed necessary." If any law can be enacted that will put Judge Gould's head in some kind of a legal vise, the country will be much obliged to congress.

E. C. McPetridge "boomed" his gubernatorial chances in Wisconsin a good deal more than he thought to do in his speech, which in his interview of to-day he said: "We, the Blaine administration, at the last presidential election, and will be happy to do so again."

Wisconsin is a Blaine state; and she likes square-toed Blaine talk from her public men.—Evening Wisconsin.

Mr. Blaine will never get the Wisconsin delegation, and therefore in its representation to the republican national convention, it is not a Blaine state. Will the editor of the Evening Wisconsin please put this out of the Gazette and paste it in his hat for reference after the convention. But should Mr. Blaine receive the nomination Wisconsin will be loyal to the nominee as it always has been, and will give him a good majority.

The Evening Wisconsin would have shown more wisdom had it said, "Wisconsin is a republican state; and she likes square-toed republican talk from her public men." There would be business and sense in that kind of talk, but there is nonsense in the other.

In an interview the other day Secretary of State Timine, after giving some items in regard to the expenses of running the state government, said: "I am firmly convinced that never before in Wisconsin, nor in any state of the whole Union, has there been such watchfulness and frugality as has been practiced by this administration. The last legislature left it to the discretion of the governor and secretary of state as to the necessity of levying a tax of $200,000 to help defray running expenses. We carefully considered the matter and concluded it was not necessary, preferring to let the $200,000 stay in the pockets of the tax payers rather than have the peoples' money accumulate in the treasury."

A Washington special in a southern democratic paper says: "Nothing is going to be done at this congress that will give Blaine a chance to vote in the coming election." 'That is very true. The business of this administration is to crush all the republican votes it can, regardless of the extent of the criminal means employed to do the crushing.

It would be quite interesting to know the reason why the Women's Christian Temperance Union of New York wants free whisky. The crupper the price the more will be drunk, and it is thought that the aim of the Union is to reduce drinking."

The Methodists crossed the one million dollars line in 1887 for missions, and now have pledged themselves to raise $1,200,000 for 1888.

Horiculturists resolve. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—At the convention of the American Horticultural Society held here to-day, resolutions were adopted authorizing members to pass such laws as will more effectively preserve the forests of the nation. Also a petition against the reduction by Congress of the existing tariff on green and dried fruits, nuts, berries, peaches, and other horticultural and agricultural products, on the ground that such reduction would injure all and destroy many of these industries.

THE POPE AND HIS PRESENTS.

His Holiness, Drexler upon the Disposition of his Jubilee Gifts.

Rome, Jan. 28.—His Holiness the Pope has made a final decision regarding the distribution of the jubilee gifts, and the Papal Secretary of State will at once comply with the instructions he has received. All the money received goes into the treasury of St. Peter, and will be expended chiefly in propagandism. The gifts of sovereignty, as they have an artistic value, are to constitute a special museum at the Vatican. The objects of worship will belong to the vestry of St. Peter's, and the linen altar cloth, which will be gold-embroidered, will be used by the Catholics of America, in the Roman Church which is most largely attended by Italian pilgrims. All the rest of the gifts will go to the hospitals. An exception will not be made even for the old Tolney sent by the Emperor of Austria, or the gift from the Duchess of Urso of 2,000 bottles of Yveto Cigogni. The gifts thus disposed of are preserved fruits, fish and meats, eggs, incense, tapestry, dates, plants, figs, oils and wines, and so on through an almost endless list, not forgetting a quantity of 15,000 pairs of slippers which were contributed by female devotees in different parts of the world. In the lists of oils and wines California, Spain, France, Austria, Sicily and Russia are among the most largely. The Pope has blessed all of the donors and their families, and will bless the poor to whom he makes the gifts.

BURIED IN SNOW-DRIFTS.

The Great Steam Down East—An Embargo on All the Railroads in Several States—Some Suffering Reported.

Boston, Jan. 28.—Latest reports are to the effect that the little improvement in railway traffic. In some cases entire divisions are blocked. Owing to a snow crust on the snow at Camden, Me., grocers and millmen are obliged to draw their own loads. In some cases the passengers of an express train, stopped by a wrecked plow, had their hands and feet frozen while waiting for Meredith, N. H. Passengers on other trains stalled by the snow have suffered from cold and hunger. Harry Ross, aged 17, was blown from a car platform on a Western railroad train yesterday and his skull was cracked.

New York, Jan. 28.—In Northern New York the snow is increasing. The freight blockade on the New York Central & Hudson River lines is the heaviest ever known. The thermometer is 15 below, and the snow is packed so closely that it is impossible to remove it. Two thousand loaded cars are being held on waiting orders to be moved. This order was given yesterday and all the motive power of the road will be little improved to move them. The other through routes are no better off. Railroad men say that they have not known so bad a storm for twenty-five years. Sixty cars loaded with frozen grain are stuck in a Middlebury and a milk famine in this city is threatened.

Advices from points in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland tell of blockades on all the railroads. Snow has drifted in Burke, Lebanon, Schuylkill and Lehigh counties, Pa., so that the public roads have been abandoned. The farmers are turning out in bands of 50 to 100 to open the roads.

IOWA LEGISLATURE. The House Engaged in Discussing the Registration Bill—Work in the House.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 28.—The Senate spent yesterday afternoon on the Registration bill. Unexpectedly to Senator Hatch, his author, Senator Seaboard introduced a substitute which exempts all the small cities from the provisions of the act, supporting it with a speech fortified by occasion remarks. Senator Barker, Leavenworth, Schuylkill and Lehigh counties, Pa., so that the public roads have been abandoned. The farmers are turning out in bands of 50 to 100 to open the roads.

The House has not yet emerged from the period of resolutions, the larger portion of the time being occupied in committee work. Mr. Russell introduced a resolution that the House favor an elective railway commission, which will precipitate a debate to-day upon Mr. Hatch's bill, substituting a voting bill. Thirty bills were introduced, but none were notable.

MISHAPS OF A DAY.

A Run-Away Grip-Car Does Fatal Work in St. Paul.

A PASSENGER KILLED; EIGHTEEN HURT. Details of the Accident—A Number of Persons Killed and Injured in Railway Accidents in the East—Fatal Mine Explosion.

HURLED DOWN A HILL. ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 28.—For months a topic of vivid interest has been as to when the St. Anthony Hill, lino of cable cars would be opened. The hill, which is quite inadequate to supply the rapidly-increasing population in that part of the city. Shows have covered the tracks, and many accidents have caused a good deal of postponed business, but yesterday the cars first began to run with some regularity, and the public was allowed to make use of them. About half-way up the Third street hill the first fatal case occurred. By a sudden start from an obscure angle, and from this curve to the top of the hill the grade is steep, probably one foot in four. Some days ago an experienced civil engineer pointed out in a published report the danger of locating a curve at the bottom of so long and steep an incline, but the effects of the road declared it perfectly safe.

At 1:50 in the afternoon a grip and passenger car, both heavily loaded with passengers, started down the hill. It was in charge of Conductor North and Gelpman Johnson. The grip had been inspected before it left the end of the line, and seemed in perfect order, but about midway down the hill the grip failed to hold the cable, and the train rushed down to the curve, on which it was to make a sharp turn. The grip-car did not leave the track, but the passenger-car whipped off, turned over, and was dragged some distance. Many of the passengers jumped on the ground, and many of those in the closed car could not do so, and all of them, twenty or more, were more or less hurt.

Gripman Johnson says: "We were about half-way down the hill when the cable snapped. It didn't break just away. I don't know just why. At the corner they rolled over. I did my best to stop the cars and drive my way out on the ground, but I could not hold the cars. At the curve on Third street the car went off and rolled over and over."

The only fatality so far as known is that of Murray E. Sanford, assistant treasurer of the Northwestern Real Estate Company, who was standing on the rear platform of the passenger-car, and with another man was rushing against a tree when the car flew down the hill. He was horribly crushed, and died soon after being taken home. He leaves a family. The hospitable residents of the neighborhood threw open their homes to the injured, and police and physicians were on the ground in a few minutes. Those most seriously hurt were as follows:

Leola Robert, of Dayton avenue, a lad, had his forehead torn off in the worst, the arm being badly crushed; Conductor Johnson was badly cut about the face and hands with broken glass, and perhaps hurt internally; George Johnson, of Dayton avenue, was seriously cut about the face; Mrs. Charles Steele, of North Washington street, received internal injuries and was badly cut; Mrs. E. J. Sully, of Dayton avenue, is very seriously hurt about the chest and has a severe scalp wound; Mr. Sweeney, corner of Dayton and Virginia avenues, was cut with broken glass and badly shocked; A. Hartman, of West Tenth street, was hurt about the head and had his skull fractured; Henry K. Smith, of Tenth street, has a severe scalp wound; A. Smith and son were badly burned by the car stopping on them; Milton G. Brown, a real-estate dealer, had his right arm hurt; Andrew Nason was badly cut on the head and had his hands burned; F. J. Mayst, superintendent of Kollege's printing office, had his feet badly crushed.

Miss Linda Thorsen and Mrs. Don Seaman, both of Milwaukee, were in the car. Miss Thorsen was thrown from the car and weighed there by the body of a heavy man. She is severely burned about the limbs and body. Mrs. Seaman escaped with a bad cut on the face.

FOUR MEN SLAUGHTERED. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 28.—The mail train from the north on the Connecticut and Hartford, due at Holyoke at 6 o'clock Thursday night, became stalled in a cut two miles north of that city. A gang of men went to work yesterday morning to dig it out. The snow was blowing about so thick that nothing could be seen a few feet distant, and the 7:30 train from Springfield dashed into the gang, killing Martin Griffin, James Kennedy and John Shea, and fatally injuring Michael Connors, all of Holyoke. Many of the men escaped by rushing into the cars of the stalled train. The trainmen say they had not been warned to look out for a gang of men.

FOUR VICTIMS Mangled. THOR, N. Y., Jan. 28.—A Boston sleeper over the Hingham road left Troy at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and reached Williams-town, Mass. A severe wind and snow-storm made it impossible for the engineer to see far ahead of his engine. At Williams-town the sleeper struck a stalled freight train. Two employees of the freight train, were killed and two others fatally hurt.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 28.—The Nottingham colliery in Plymouth, the largest in the Wyoming coal field, was the scene of a terrible explosion of gas yesterday afternoon, by which one man was killed and six others injured, three of them fatally. The men were track-layers and were working in an old gas-war, thought to be entirely free from gas.

A BLIZZARD

As one business man said to another, "This sale of Bostwick & Sons is a REGULAR DAKOTA BLIZZARD,—that is, they have swept all competition out of sight. The prices they are making on ALL goods SURPRISE the people; and as they say, they are selling Dry Goods CHEAPER than ever before known at any sale. Besides this, they have got the goods to SELL, and they are not afraid to SELL them REGARDLESS of quantity."

Why, just imagine 300 rolls of Carpet, the finest in the land, at PRIME COST; 500 packages of all manner of Dry Goods at cost. Some Special things: 10 pieces of Cloaking, made by the McLean Manufacturing Co., at 75c. a yard, 54 inches wide—the best value of any one thing in the sale; and everything on the same order; 150 dozen Hoods and Nubias the same; 1,000 dozen Hosiery the same. Right here we will speak of a little lot of Gents' Scarlet UNDERWEAR that we are selling at 87 1-2c; this lot of goods was bought by our auction man from a bankrupt sale; the same goods have been sold at $1.75. This is no "competitors' talk," but fact. Also 500 Ladies' and Children's Underwear that are cheap indeed. Prints, Gingham, Satines and all kinds of wash goods on the same low scale during this sale. Well may our competitors stand Awe Stricken at this grand panorama of goods offered at such LOW figures; and when the people come to buy they will find the goods and not be greeted with "just out." 'Sample Corsets,' being handled by everybody, are apt to breed disease; they are the kind we throw away.

J. M. BOSTWICK &amp; SONS.
